Samantha Gunnison focuses her practice on real estate litigation and property tax matters. Sam is also a key member of the firm's collection practice, enforcing obligations owed to the firm's clients through garnishment, levy, and execution among other actions. Prior to joining the firm, Sam gained valuable experience as a commercial litigation associate in a prominent Atlanta-based civil litigation firm.

Sam received her J.D. in 2011 from the Georgia State University College of Law. During law school, Sam interned with a prominent Atlanta-based commercial litigation boutique as well as with the Georgia Innocence Project, a Georgia non-profit that has since 2004 helped exonerate, through the use of DNA evidence, many Georgians wrongly convicted of serious crimes. She served as Vice-President of the law school's Moot Court Honor Society, and was selected as a pupil for the Bleckley Inn of Court, one of the highest honors bestowed upon third-year law students. Sam obtained her Bachelor of Arts degree in Philosophy from the University of Georgia in 2008, and remains an avid Dawg fan. As an undergraduate, Sam competed as a member of UGA's intercollegiate equestrian team where she won multiple year-end individual and team regional championships and qualified for the National Championship competition in her sophomore year. After graduating, Sam continued to compete as an alumna for the University. She was the individual National Champion in 2011. When not practicing law, Sam can be found at the barn with her horse, aptly named "Billable Ours."
